“I want to extend my gratitude to the visionaries who, 25 years ago, conceived the idea that Nigeria’s energy story deserved an identity of its own. That vision gave birth to the annual NOG Energy Week, and it is the reason we are all gathered here today. I congratulate them for creating a platform that continues to bring together government, academia, industry and stakeholders each year to shape the future of Nigeria’s oil and gas sector.

Nigeria is positioning itself as one of Africa’s most attractive destinations for gas investment through fiscal reforms, regulatory stability and strategic infrastructure development. Nigeria’s estimated 215 trillion cubic feet of proven natural gas reserves, the largest in Africa, will serve not only export markets but also power domestic industries, fertiliser plants, petrochemical facilities, transportation and clean cooking initiatives.”

H.E. Sen. Heineken Lokpobiri

Honourable Minister of State for Petroleum Resources (Oil)
Federal Republic of Nigeria

“The nations that will shape the future of energy will not necessarily be those with the greatest resources, but those with the clearest vision, the courage to reform, and the resolve to transform their resources into shared prosperity. This is the defining challenge, and indeed the historic opportunity, of our generation.

The future belongs not to economies that choose between energy security and sustainability, but to those that successfully deliver both. Natural gas has emerged as the indispensable bridge connecting these two objectives, providing affordable, reliable and baseload energy. It fuels industrial growth, supports cleaner transportation, complements renewable energy systems, and strengthens the resilience of local economies.

For Africa, and indeed Nigeria, this represents far more than a commercial opportunity; it is a historic responsibility.”

H. E. Rt. Hon. Ekperikpe Ekpo

Honourable Minister of State for Petroleum Resources (Gas)
Federal Republic of Nigeria

Feedback From Pavilion Organisers

“NOG Energy Week is a crucial event for Chinese enterprises. In 2025, we organised 27 Chinese companies, including top 500 enterprises worldwide, occupying a total of 363 sqm at the event. All of the participating companies had positive feedback about the event, with some securing deals and selling their products on-site. For the next edition, we will bring more Chinese companies to NOG Energy Week and build a stronger bond between Chinese companies and the rest of the world. We are looking forward to future collaborations with dmg events.”
