I want to extend my gratitude to the visionaries who, 25 years ago, conceived the idea that Nigeria’s energy story deserved an identity of its own. That vision gave birth to the annual NOG Energy Week, and it is the reason we are all gathered here today. I congratulate them for creating a platform that continues to bring together government, academia, industry and stakeholders each year to shape the future of Nigeria’s oil and gas sector.

Nigeria is positioning itself as one of Africa’s most attractive destinations for gas investment through fiscal reforms, regulatory stability and strategic infrastructure development. Nigeria’s estimated 215 trillion cubic feet of proven natural gas reserves, the largest in Africa, will serve not only export markets but also power domestic industries, fertiliser plants, petrochemical facilities, transportation and clean cooking initiatives.

The nations that will shape the future of energy will not necessarily be those with the greatest resources, but those with the clearest vision, the courage to reform, and the resolve to transform their resources into shared prosperity. This is the defining challenge, and indeed the historic opportunity, of our generation.

The future belongs not to economies that choose between energy security and sustainability, but to those that successfully deliver both. Natural gas has emerged as the indispensable bridge connecting these two objectives, providing affordable, reliable and baseload energy. It fuels industrial growth, supports cleaner transportation, complements renewable energy systems, and strengthens the resilience of local economies.

For Africa, and indeed Nigeria, this represents far more than a commercial opportunity; it is a historic responsibility.

H. E. Rt. Hon. Ekperikpe Ekpo
Honourable Minister of State
for Petroleum Resources (Gas)
Federal Republic of Nigeria

For us to attract the capital that global disruptions will bring to Nigeria, and fully leverage the opportunities beyond supply, we must continue to focus on industrialisation and value addition. It is not enough to simply harness our natural resources; we must transform them into products and industries that create lasting economic value.

H.E. Sen. John Owan Enoh
Honourable Minister of State
for Industry
Federal Republic of Nigeria

Nigerian Content Seminar Highlights

The 2026 Nigerian Content Seminar at NOG Energy Week examined how Nigeria can move from local participation to stronger productive and industrial capacity across the energy sector. Discussions focused on technology transfer, research and innovation, local manufacturing, workforce development and the need to align training with current industry demands.

The sessions also explored African collaboration, emerging leadership, offshore opportunities, stronger supply chains and import substitution. Speakers emphasised that building capacity is not enough; it must be actively utilised through deliberate policies, access to projects, strategic partnerships and greater support for indigenous businesses. The seminar reinforced the importance of collaboration between regulators, operators, manufacturers and training institutions in driving sustainable growth and global competitiveness.

It is necessary that we learn from Nigeria and the progress it has made over the past 78 years, as we are only just beginning. We are already building partnerships through our production agreement and the Mutapa Sovereign Fund, and we are inspired by the partnerships being forged by indigenous Nigerian companies. That is the direction we want to take because partnerships are very important.

H.E. Hon. July Moyo
Honourable Minister of Energy
& Power Development
Republic of Zimbabwe

The quality of the conversations we’ve had so far, the panel discussions and the presentations by the guest speakers, shows that everybody is committed to working solutions. We see the challenges, but we are all committed to finding solutions, and it has all been solution-driven. For me, NOG Energy Week is that melting pot where stakeholders brainstorm, share ideas and, through that sharing, come up with workable solutions.

Oritsemeyiwa Eyesan

Nigerian Upstream Petroleum
Regulatory Commission
(NUPRC)

This year's NOG Energy Week theme, “Forging Africa's Strategic Energy Growth Through Global Collaboration” could not be more timely, as Africa continues to confront a critical question: how can a continent blessed with abundant energy resources still experience some of the world's largest energy deficits?

The conversation around collaboration, investment and innovation remains central to unlocking Africa's energy potential and delivering sustainable access for its people.

The future of Africa's energy industry depends on a strong ecosystem of collaboration — from capable service providers transforming resources into production and infrastructure into value, to regulators providing clarity and consistency. It also requires universities, research institutions and innovation centres to develop the talent, technologies and solutions needed to power the next phase of energy growth across the continent.

Bashir Bayo Ojulari
GCEO
NNPC Limited

For 25 years, NOG Energy Week has remained a platform where Nigeria reflects on its energy journey, the commitments made, the challenges overcome, the milestones achieved and the future we must build. As this year's theme highlights ambition, competitiveness and resilience, the conversation now calls for more than promises. It calls for action, accountability and a collective commitment to shaping a stronger energy future for Nigeria and Africa.

Nigeria has made a clear choice, to move beyond being a repository of untapped potential and become a driver of African industrialisation. The focus is not only on producing energy resources, but on transforming them into megawatts, petrochemicals, mobility solutions, manufacturing opportunities, jobs and exports. For Africa, the true energy transition is not about surrender; it is about transformation, value creation and building a more resilient future.

Leadership Roundtables Highlights

The NOG Energy Week featured two high-level, closed-door, invitation-only Leadership Roundtables. This series of meetings under Chatham House Rule gathered selected Ministers, C-level executives and policymakers to foster transformative thinking that will shape the future of the most critical energy challenges being faced by the industry.

The sessions were facilitated by independent and experienced moderators and hosted by industry leaders. Participants were carefully selected for the sessions to ensure the calibre of the members remained high - the exclusivity of the Leadership Roundtables is maintained to ensure only the most senior decision-makers are selected. Participants are confirmed through invitations and applications to participate.

Technical Seminar Highlights

The Technical Seminar served as a cornerstone for innovation and knowledge-sharing across the oil, gas and wider energy sectors. Designed for technical and engineering professionals, the CPD-certified seminar featured cutting-edge sessions on advanced technologies, breakthrough research and industry best practices.

Discussions explored practical solutions to some of the industry's most pressing challenges, including AI-driven reservoir optimisation, modular refining and gas monetisation. Through technical presentations and knowledge exchange, delegates strengthened their practical capabilities and gained insights into the technologies and engineering expertise shaping a smarter, more resilient and sustainable energy future.

The NOG Energy Week Technical Seminar received over 400 abstracts from global contributors, with selected technical papers presented across 14 categories over three impactful days.
